1. The first part of the paper discusses the importance of the study of the history of the United States. It is argued that a knowledge of the past is essential for a full understanding of the present and for the development of a sound policy for the future. The author points out that the study of history is not only a means of satisfying a natural curiosity about the past, but also a means of developing a sense of responsibility for the future.

2. The second part of the paper discusses the methods of historical research. It is pointed out that the study of history is not a simple matter of collecting facts and dates, but a process of critical analysis and interpretation. The author emphasizes the importance of the selection of sources and the evaluation of their reliability. It is also noted that the study of history is a process of discovery, and that the historian must be open to new evidence and new interpretations.

3. The third part of the paper discusses the significance of the study of history for the present and the future. It is argued that the study of history is not only a means of satisfying a natural curiosity about the past, but also a means of developing a sense of responsibility for the future. The author points out that the study of history is not only a means of satisfying a natural curiosity about the past, but also a means of developing a sense of responsibility for the future.

4. The fourth part of the paper discusses the role of the historian in society. It is pointed out that the historian is not only a student of the past, but also a participant in the present. The author emphasizes the importance of the historian's role in the development of a sound policy for the future. It is also noted that the historian must be open to new evidence and new interpretations.

5. The fifth part of the paper discusses the future of the study of history. It is pointed out that the study of history is not a static discipline, but a dynamic one that is constantly evolving. The author emphasizes the importance of the study of history for the present and the future. It is also noted that the study of history is not only a means of satisfying a natural curiosity about the past, but also a means of developing a sense of responsibility for the future.
